ABOUT US

Oilmin Field Services (OFS) has been operating in Papua New Guinea since 1992. OFS' core expertise lies in providing skilled and unskilled manpower and expert supervision for construction of remote camps, management and catering services, civil construction projects (including rig pad construction), and remote logistics services.

Our Team consists of specialists, including Project Managers with specific expertise in Tree Felling Specialists, Trainers, Civil Construction Managers, Camp Managers, and Catering Managers. The main responsibility of these specialists is to bring their international experience and expertise to ensure safe operations. Oilmin requires them to assess the national workforce, train them, identify high-achievers, and mentor them for senior roles within the company.

This approach has been highly successful, with OFS now having National Managers in areas such as Chainsaw Supervisors, Camp Management, Catering, Personnel, Human Resources, and Logistics. This has not only helped to enhance the skills and knowledge of the national workforce but has also empowered them to take on leadership roles within the company.

CIVIL CONSTRUCTION

Oilmin has an extensive fleet of well-maintained and low-hour equipment that is ideal for remote construction projects, such as rig pad construction.

Our team of experienced insertion crews are mobilized to remote locations to clear areas for the construction of helipads, enabling us to bring in our construction equipment. Due to the limitations on the lifting capacity of helicopters, our dozers and excavators are disassembled for transportation and then reassembled on location.

This process is facilitated by mobilizing a gantry to site to assist with the reassembly. Our crew of experienced mechanics and operators, along with our heli-portable workshops, work tirelessly to achieve this task. Oilmin is renowned for being the remote site experts, and we have constructed 20+ rig pads for international oil companies. This is a testament to our expertise in managing the challenges associated with remote construction projects, and our commitment to delivering high-quality services to our clients.

TRAINING

OFS places strong emphasis on maintaining high standards in its Training and Development Programme. We achieve this by employing certified trainers, partnering with reputable training institutions, and offering world-class training opportunities that equip our staff with the skills and knowledge to excel. Our commitment is demonstrated through international training options, ensuring employees remain competent and aligned with the latest industry practices.

OFS maintains a network of Registered Training Organisations in Port Moresby, delivering programmes for both employees and external clients. These cover health, safety and environment (HSE), technical skills, leadership, and management. Details of available courses are listed in our training schedule.

New employees undergo comprehensive onboarding, including company policies, safety rules, and job-specific training. This process incorporates Job Hazard Analyses (JHAs) and Standard Operating Procedures (SOPs) relevant to each role. Experienced staff also benefit from on-the-job training to refresh or expand their skills.

Beyond formal training, OFS encourages informal learning through conferences, workshops, seminars, and coaching. We are committed to promoting from within, enabling career progression and skill development across the organisation.

Overall, OFS delivers a comprehensive approach to training and development in Papua New Guinea, ensuring our workforce is equipped to meet client needs and uphold industry standards.
